Hallucinations, wrong details and outdated claims found while researching

Goal: test AI and web outputs for hallucinations, wrong or unsafe advice, and outdated information before using them. Checked on 22 October 2026.

Findings

#	Claim found	Type	Check and result	Used in final work
1	“The DPDP Act is now fully operational.” (a compliance guide)	Outdated / overstated	Sources list Rights, children’s and penalty sections as in force about 13 May 2027; consent managers about 13 Nov 2026; only the Board provisions began on 13 Nov 2025.	Corrected: phased timeline stated everywhere.
2	Rights numbered Sections 12 to 15 (one PDF summary and one FAQ page)	Wrong detail	Other sources and the Act’s contents list give S.11 information, S.12 correction and erasure, S.13 grievance, S.14 nomination, S.15 duties.	Used S.11 to S.15.
3	Breach-notice penalty ₹50 crore (one source) vs ₹200 crore (others)	Conflict	Several sources list ₹200 crore; the Schedule is the authority. Highest penalty ₹250 crore agreed in every source.	Used ₹250 crore as headline and ₹200 crore for breach notice, flagged to confirm in the Act.
4	Children’s data penalty ₹150 crore (one FAQ) vs ₹200 crore (others)	Conflict	Most sources, including a Big Four summary, give ₹200 crore.	Used ₹200 crore, flagged to confirm.
5	Child means under 18	Verified	Same in every source checked.	Used.
6	CERT-In: report within 6 hours	Verified, scope noted	Three law-firm summaries match. The duty is on service providers, body corporates and government bodies, not on individuals.	Used, with scope noted.
7	GDPR: fine €20 million or 4%, child age 16, breach notice 72 hours	Known standard, not re-searched	Well-known Articles 83, 8 and 33. Confirm on the official EUR-Lex text before submission.	Used.

Risk checklist used on every AI output

- Hallucination: invented section numbers, penalties or case names. Cross-check each number.
- Wrong or unsafe advice: advice to share IDs or to skip consent. Compare with the Act.
- Outdated information: models trained before November 2025 may call the Act “not yet in force”. Check dates against MeitY.
- Privacy: no real personal data was put into any prompt.

Conclusion

The numbers that appear on a website are not enough evidence. Dates, section numbers and amounts were kept only where sources agreed or the Act’s structure confirmed them. Remaining checks: confirm amounts in the Schedule of the Act and the GDPR figures on EUR-Lex before the final viva.
